BOURBONNAIS: OR THE EARLY FRENCH SETTLEMENTS IN KANKAKEE COUNTY, ILLINOIS

He was born at St. Michel de Yanaska, Province of Quebec, Canada in 1799. The exact date of his birth is preserved in his name, for Noel is the French word for Christmas, and he was born on Christmas night. His family was poor. There was a log cabin home, and it is probable that very early the boy Noel became inured to hardship and developed the traits of character and powers of endurance that were to serve him in this new country. Before he had completed his eighteenth year he went west with eighty men, under one Rocheblave, to engage in trade with the Indians. He left Montreal May 15, 1817, and was in Mackinac during the succeeding summer. Here Rocheblave sold his project to the American Fur Company.

It seems that LeVasseur must have abandoned the service of the fur company here, for it is said that he and a companion, together with an Indian, during the year 1817 embarked in a frail canoe on a hazardous trip through the country now embraced within the boundaries of Wisconsin. Following the west shore of Lake Michigan to Green Bay, and thence going by way of the Fox river and the portage to the Wisconsin, they paddled down the latter to the place where is now Prairie du Chien. Here they found favor with a band of Chippewa Indians, and remained with them until the following spring. LeVasseur's adaptability is evidenced by the fact that he so ingratiated himself with the Indians that when he desired to leave them the chief informed him that he had been made a member of the tribe, and they would not consent to his departure; and he and his companion were compelled to plan a secret escape, which they successfully carried out. But it involved much privation. They made their way on foot to Green Bay. They were ragged and weakened from insufficient food when they found succor at a temporary camp of the American Fur Company on Green Bay. They were then sent on to Mackinac, and there re-engaged in the service of the fur company.

But LeVasseur's experience with the Indians on this adventure proved of great value to him. He had learned their tongue, and from this time forward he was sent to various distant points to barter with the Indians, until the fur company finally deputed to him the important mission into the Illinois Country to open trade relations with the Potawatomes, who were reported very successful in capturing furs. It is said that LeVasseur's dealings with the Indians were very successful and were likewise always satisfactory to the Indians. In those early days in all of his transactions with his red brethren, as well as in his relations to others, he exemplified the spirit of what our President has popularly characterized the 'square deal'.

One of his methods of bookkeeping, particularly, is of interest, especially in view of the fact that he could not read or write. His entries were pictorial. At the head of the account with any particular Indians he would draw a picture of that which the Indian's name would ordinarily suggest. For instance, if he had opened an account with an Indian by the name of Beaver, at the top of the page he would draw the picture of a beaver. And if Beaver had bought powder on time, there would have been numerous black specks placed on the page, with the picture of a round moon for each month of time that credit was given. Or if Beaver had bought a gun or knife an appropriate picture would be the entry. And when Beaver would come with his pelts and furs to pay his bill he himself could read and understand this account in LeVasseur's ledger, and would be entirely satisfied with its correctness.

In 1818, at Mackinac, LeVasseur had become acquainted with Gurdon S. Hubbard, and it is said that some years later he and Hubbard both left the service of the fur company and formed a partnership and engaged in the fur business themselves. It may be that this was about the time of the establishment of the post on the Iroquois, and that this post was established in the interest of their partnership and not for the fur company. It is, however, certain that for many years LeVasseur maintained this post, himself making trips into the tributary country, and frequently coming to Bourbonnais Grove to trade with Bourbonnais and his potawatomi kinsmen. And it is not to be doubted that he was much impressed by the beauty and fertility of the region.

I understand that Gurdon S. Hubbard was authority for the statement that LeVasseur settled at Bourbonnais Grove in March, 1832, and that he was Bourbonnais' first actual white settler. In the fall of this year, by the treaty of Tippecanoe, the Potawatomis ceded to the United State Government a large area of land, including that along the Kankakee, except certain reservations made therein. Most of these reservations were contiguous to Bourbonnais Grove, and LeVasseur bought much of this reserved land from the Indians.

About 1836 and 1837, under the supervision of the Government, the Indians were moved westward, and Mr. LeVasseur was the Government agent in charge of their removal. At this time his wife, an Indian woman, went with her own people, her husband, LeVasser continuing his residence at Bourbonnais Grove. In passing, it may be stated that her name was Watseka, and that it was after her that the county seat of Iroquois County was named. An issue of his marriage with Watseka, Mr. LeVasseur had three children, but they all afterwards died without descendants.

The opening of the Indian lands to the whites in consequence of the treaty of 1832, attracted not a few settlers to the vicinity of Bourbonnais Grove. A postoffice was established in the locality as early as 1836, which, by the way, for nearly two years was officially designated as "Kankakee" but on March 15, 1838, its designation was changed by the postal authorities to "Bull-bonas Grove".

Catholicism made its advent in 1837, when In June Father Lalumlere said the first mass; and it was at this mass that the first baptism occurred, that of a child named Andre Bray. But not for several years did French settlers come, and as the theme assigned me pertains to the French settlement, I will not appropriate any of my time to the worthy pioneers who preceded the French immigration.

In 1840, LeVasseur built his first house near the place where St. Viateur's College now stands in the village of Bourbonnais. And then he went to Canada in quest of a wife and also to induce Canadian immigration to the Bourbonnais country, which it is said he portrayed as the second promised land. He came back the following year without a companion, however, but the stories he had told to his Canadian countrymen, of how fortune smiled on the frugal and industrious in his adopted home, Illustrated and corroborated by his own success in the accumulation of landed wealth, kindled their imaginations. His reports were published far and wide. One who was induced by them to try his fortune on the Kankakee, makes the following statement: "They read like interesting romance. They caused a great sensation. In some localities people became greatly excited and prepared to sell their farms and holdings forthwith in order to go at once to the new country."

But it is said that the immigration to Bourbonnais did not commence until 1844. That year there came the Rivards, St. Plerres, Flageoles, Legris, Delunais, Lapolice, Martins, Savoies, Belgards, Lafluers, Coriveaux and other families no less prominent.

LeVasseur interested himself actively in the welfare of all the new accessions to the colony. He located their land at the government land office; sold them land, and helped them to build their homes. In 1846 the early reports of LeVasseur, concerning this splendid county, were revived; and that year witnessed perhaps the largest number of French Canadian Immigrants to Bourbonnais. In 1847 three men came on behalf of Canadian friends and relatives to investigate conditions and report thereon. They were John B. Letourneau, Captain Fortin and Alexander Boucher. They all returned to Canada, carrying back most encouraging reports of the general prosperity enjoyed by the Bourbonnais settlers. But with them had come George R. Letourneau and Godfrey Mathieu, who remained and became permanent and substantial factors in building up this prosperous community. The next year, others came, moved by the favorable reports of John B. Letourneau and his associates of the preceding year.

Among those who came in the years 1846, 1847 and 1849 were Peter Spink, the four Fortin brothers and families, the two Langlois brothers and their families, the Dellibacks, David Granger, the Brosseaus, Joseph E. Labrie, the Bisettes, Rossettes, Lesages, and Alexis Carrom. The French immigration practically ceased with the years 1850, 1851 and 1852. Among the last immigrants were the families of the Grandpre brothers, of Constantin, of the two Berard brothers, the Lesages and Brais.

For years all immigrants from Canada, whatever their ultimate objective, came primarily to Bourbonnais and made this the base of their first plans and operations in the new country. Many of them settled afterwards in other portions of the county or in neighboring counties. Our appreciation of the importance of the French settlement here and our interest in it must be greatly increased when we pause to think that from it went forth the people who established every other French town in Kankakee and Iroquois Counties. Kankakee is a large measure, St. Anne, LeErable, St. Mary, Papineau, all must acknowledge Bourbonnais as the mother; and, more than that, from old Bourbonnais and these, her nearby children, sprang all that French Canadian colonies of Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

This is the story of Bourbonnais and the early French settlement thereof; but we must not leave the account of LeVasseur so incomplete. He was united in marriage with Miss Ruth Bull, of Danville. As the issue of this marriage there were eight children, four boys and four girls; all of whom are now deceased, except one, Mrs. Dr. Monast, of Chicago. Mrs. LeVasseur was a protestant, but she reared all of her children in the Catholic faith of her husband. She died in 1860. Mr. LeVasseur was again married in 1861.

On March 15, 1875, there was held an election of the Bourbonnais citizens for the purpose of voting on the proposition to incorporate the Village of Bourbonnais under the general law. The order in which the citizens cast their votes at this election, was probably not prearranged, but it seems appropriate that the fact is that a list of names of voters who participated in that election as it appears among the files of the County Court of Kankakee County, is headed by the name of Noel LeVasseur. It seems that another election was held on the 13th of April of that year, for the same purpose, which resulted in the incorporation of the Village of Bourbonnais; and Noel LeVasseur appears as a voter at that election also.

He died in 1879, full of years and honor. His mortal remains rest in the cemetery near the old town and in the locality wherein through his influence thousands of his Canadian countrymen found and made contented, prosperous homes.

It is not improbable that there are still extant in Canada, old newspapers or other prints, containing the accounts which LeVasseur gave to his people sixty-six years ago, - and his glowing prophesies of the future greatness of the country to which he then urged them to come. They would be interesting at this time. Events have confirmed and fulfilled them all. Those people who acted upon his representation have been benefited and they have benefited others. Their material prosperity has been great. They have made their little city a seat of learning. St. Viateur's college attracts the ambitious youth of many states and prepares them for the best in life. They have supported that other pillar of good government, religion. And Catholicism in the Kankakee country, there seems to be a double significance in the appellation of her great religious congregation and institution, "The Church of the Maternity". Her people have been sober, industrious, energetic and progressive. They have proven themselves useful and worthy citizens of the country they have adopted as their own. From among them have been chosen men who have honorably filled positions of public trust; and there is not a legitimate industry or business, there is not a learned profession, whether it be of music or medicine or law or theology, that is not today graced by descendants of the early French settlers of Bourbonnais.

OTTO HITS AND MISSES

Taken from The Kankakee Gazette, March 11, 1875

Mr. Sherman will start for Indiana soon.

Mr. Gannon purchased eighty acres of Mrs. Pruett last week - the price we did not learn.

Simon Sammous rented his farm for a term of three years and started out to seek his fortune elsewhere.

Mr. John Dennis has sold out too, for the consideration of $50 per acre, and will accompany Mr. Denham.

Mr. John White and wife are expected back this week to set up housekeeping near the home of former years.

March came storming in for certain this year, and still continues to howl and rave in a very unbecoming manner.

Mrs. Havens has Just become settled in her old home which she left two years ago. Many are glad to welcome her back.

Mr. A. Sieman traded his farm of eighty acres to Mr. P. V. Lowe in part payment for two hundred and twenty east of Waldron.

Mr. Robert Denham recently sold his farm of eighty acres to Mr. Phillip Bacon for the sum of $1,800. He Intends to start for California soon.

Many of the citizens hereabouts are becoming dissatisfied, with this part of the country, and quite a number of places are accordingly changing hands.

L. P. Dewitt, of Wilmington, stole a march in the neighborhood recently and took Miss Sarah Gray home with him as Mrs. Dewitt. We wish them much Joy.

Miss Lizzie Havens returned to her home in Champaign last week, after a short visit among her friends in this vicinity. Miss Ida Smith returned with her.

Monday was a grand day for those who were obliged to vacate rented houses and seek new homes. We saw one sorry-looking family toiling along on their wagon toward shelter on that day.

We do wish people would awaken to a sense of the great Importance of building a bridge across the Iroquois somewhere between Sugar Island and Putnam's ford. We really wanted to attend the Teacher's Convention at Waldron last Friday, but couldn't - just because that bridge is not yet a tangible affair.

"Plumes from the captured eagle!" Plumes, forsooth! You mean pin feathers, don't you?

"Birdie, wait a little longer,
Till your little wings grow stronger'

before you venture out far on the strengh of your plumes! 'Chunk' of sour grape sugar, wasn't it"?

MANTENO HAPPENINGS

Taken from The Kankakee Gazette, March 11, 1875

W. J. Mann rejoices in the possession of twin boys, one week old last Monday.

The friends of Sammy Lee will be glad to learn that he is slowly recovering and he is expected to be out again in a few weeks.

It is with sadness that we report the death of Edwin C. Wright, oldest son of E. Wright, of this place. Thus in one short week one of our most promising young men is taken from perfect health to the grave.

L. B. Merrick has traded his store, goods and buildings with L. Milk for a farm of 510 acres near Clifton, where he expects to remove with his family in a short time. We understand the business will be carried on here, but by whom we not know.

Mr. Alfred Deslauries, one of the oldest inhabitants of this place, died Saturday last. Mr. Deslauries has kept his store here in one place for over 20 years, always the same quite, gentlemanly business man, making friends with everybody and respected by all.

The last heavy snow storm had rather a damaging effect on some of our shippers. J. F. Campbell had a number of carloads ready to ship to Albany, Tuesday night when the storm commenced. Fearing a blockade he drove them back to his yard except three or four cars which he had loaded before the storm had reached its height. They were blocked in near Mattison for 40 hours and had to be sent into Chicago and sold in a much reduced condition.

The long talked of cheese factory is to be built at last. The building committee, S. Williams, Peter Brosseau and E. Wright, have given out specifications for the carpenter work which is to be done by the first of May. The building is to be 26 x 56 and two stories high, one of stone and one of wood and furnished with all the conveniences for handling and working up milk. The building will be built just south of the residence of Mr. Wright where he has a well filled Ice house ready for next summer.

Our high school promises us their annual exhibition some time near the last of March. They gave a fine exhibition last spring. The Principal, Mr. C. H. Pleasants, promises us that with their experience they will give a better one this Spring. They number about fifty scholars and are under the especial care of the Principal. The Intermediate and Primary departments are taught by lady teachers, Miss M. Hazelton, in the former and Miss Rovilla Myers, of Kankakee, in the latter department. The two schools number about 123 scholars, though they are crowded for want of room. These schools will average well with any school in the county. One of the Directors says they have the best discipline they have ever had in those departments.

There will be a donation party held at the M. E. church Thursday evening March 18, for the benefit of the Rev. J. Wardle.
